THE JOURNEY

THE MISSION

15

And so in the month of February 2019, the Akwa Ibom people from Ikono-Ini extract spoke with one voice and unanimously sent their son, Obong Emmanuel Ukpang-Udo (a.k.a. Macaire), to the Green Chambers for a 4-year term in the National Assembly.

This development is not in any way a surprise; except, of course, to those who erroneously perceived Macaire as a greenhorn in the political arena. Followers of the life and career of this vibrant philanthropist will affirm that this elevation was perhaps long overdue. His previous contributions to the political ambitions of many before him and his empathic disposition towards the well-being of the less-privileged in society, paved the way for the actualization of his political destiny today.

As soon as Macaire bowed to persuasion from various quarters and declared an interest in the House of Representatives race, he became an easy and automatic choice for the Ikono-Ini people. Armed with campaign slogans, "Mkpoikana-Abasi2019" and "Macaire2019" and backed by a very effectual Mkpoikana-Abasi Campaign Organization, various other support groups as well as prominent individuals, his victory was became a forgone conclusion several months before its eventual materialization.

And so, congratulations to the Elders, Men, Women and Youth of Ikono and Ini Federal Constituency for making the right choice and for proving that true democracy, wherein the will of the people prevails, thrives in Akwa Ibom.

THE MAN, EMMANUEL UKPONG-UDO

“...there is a limit to what I, as an individual, can do to help people. I seek to represent my people at the National Assembly as a platform to positively affect a larger number of people.”

Obong Emmanuel Ukpong-Udo

Whether in the realm of active politics, or in the corporate world of Nigeria's vibrant oil and gas industry; whether in the urban centres or in rural discourse, the name "Macaire" rings out loud - and for good!

A renowned Occupational Safety & Health Consultant who holds the distinction of a number of firsts in his field, Emmanuel Ukpong-Udo has, in the last two decades, been a case study in human capital and community development, leadership and career excellence. His humble beginning in Ndiya/Usung Ikot Idaha may have suggested little about a man who, today, is better known for a large heart and a stand-out professional career; but today, he has become an inspiration for the upcoming generation.

Born in the mid-70s to Apostle Effiong and (late) Josephine Ukpong-Udo, he schooled at Presbyterian Primary School, Edem Urua/Itu Andem in Ibiono Ibom, Federal Government College, Ikot Ekpene and later, the University of Uyo from where he obtained a Bachelor's Degree in Applied Chemistry. Macaire today holds a Master's Degree in Occupational and Environment Health and Safety Management from the University of Portsmouth, a Doctorate degree on the way, as well as several other professional certifications and affiliations from home and abroad.

He started out his working career at Shell Petroleum Development Company, Port Harcourt during the mandatory National Youth Service Corps scheme and has since then worked with and held various sensitive positions in the Health and Safety departments of several multi-national organizations including Weprah Oil and Gas Ltd, ABB Soimi Ltd, CGG Limited, the GTZ Limited, the LYK Corporation, among many others. His career has also spanned Balfour Beatty Utilities Limited, United Kingdom and Orleans Invest West Africa Ltd (a holding company of Intels West Africa Ltd.), where he held sway as the Regional QHSE Manager before answering the call to serve his people.

It is noteworthy that this son of Ikono-Ini Federal Constituency is the FIRST and (until November 2018) the only Nigerian to be conferred with the ranking Chartered Fellow Safety and Health Practitioner (CFIOSH) - the highest safety qualification awarded in United Kingdom by world health and safety organization, IOSH. He is also the only Chartered Quality Professional (CQP) registered in United Kingdom and practicing in Nigeria, as well as the only HSE Consultant registered in the United Kingdom and practicing in Nigeria. In all these, he has maintained a humble disposition which accounts for the taciturnity of these attainments and accolades.

In recognition of his service to humanity so far, Obong Emmanuel Ukpong-Udo has several traditional titles and accolades conferred on him including: Obong Unwana of Ndiya, Otuekong Nkwot and Ono Owo Nkpo I, all in Ikono Local Governemnt Area. He is also Obong Idorenyin Ukana East in Essien Udim Local Government Area. He has also been made a Patron and Grand Patron of several association and organizations. A family man, Ukpong-Udo is married to Kuseme and they have three amazing children - Michelle, Macaire and Marcella.

He is indeed a beacon of pride to Ikono-Ini Federal constituency, Akwa Ibom state and Nigeria at large as he steps forward to another level of responsibility in the Green Chambers of the National Assembly, in the interest of his constituents.
